West African Drumming and Dance

Join Chimie Bangoura of Guinea, West Africa to learn traditional rhythms and techniques of West African hand drumming (djembe) and dance. Chimie is a brilliant and energetic master drummer and studio musician from West Africa. He is originally from Matam, which is the epicenter of drum and dance in Conakry, Guinea. He studied djembe and doundoun with Tonton Soriba Sylla for eight years while directing and teaching drum classes for visiting European students. He moved to Vermont in 2007 and is eager to share his passion and talent.
